MOROCCAN HOSPITALITY

Moroccans are warm and welcoming, known worldwide for their hospitality. A glass of Moroccan mint tea is offered in welcome whether you are entering their home or just their shop. If you get the opportunity to be a guest in a Moroccan home, you will find yourself treated like royalty. This hospitality is also offered in riads around the country (riads being Morocco's version of a bed and breakfast). Originally riads were private homes, several stories high, with a central courtyard containing either a pool or a fountain. Now, riads are guest houses festooned with stunning tile-work and plaster carvings. And of course, you will be welcomed with a glass of sweet mint tea.

The sunshine, altitude, and mild temperatures make the region ideal for vineyards, and the 2000 hectares of Les Celliers de Meknes's vineyards are some of the finest in Morocco.

Meknes is constantly seeking to improve their offerings.

Your visit will include a tour of their production room, storage caves where the wine ages in oak barrels, and end with a tasting in their beautiful tasting room or on the back patio, surrounded by pomegranate and olive trees. With four tiers of wines to choose from, and four wines in each tier, you will receive four bottles of wine to taste and take with you to enjoy.
